DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN

DATES TO MARCH 2.

Congressional

WASHINGTON, March 2.—In the Senate there was an ineffectual attempt to take up the bill to pay Southern Senators.

The army appropriation bill was discussed and laid aside.

The legislative appropriation bill was taken up.

The amendments to the Indian appropriation bill were non concurred in and a conference committee asked.

The report of the Conference Committee on the diplomatic bill, was agreed to. Several amendments to the appropriation bill were agreed to. A motion to strike out the clause increasing the salaries of females in Department clerks, was rejected. An amendment was adopted giving female employees the same salary for the same work.

The amendment to increase the salary of Treasurer to $8,000 was rejected. The Senate insisted on its amendment to Schenck's bill and a Committee of Conference was appointed.

The report of the Committee of Conference on the diplomatic bill was agreed to.

An amendment was adopted to the legislative appropriation bill abolishing the office of Assistant Secretary of the Navy.

A proposition authorizing deposits in the Mint and its branches, of refined gold and silver bullion, suitable for coinage, and to give in payment imported bars at rates upon rules prescribed by the director of the Mint, subject to the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, was laid over informally.

It passed unanimously.

HAVANA, March 2. There is a report that all the political prisoners have been sent to Fernando Po. The government is silent on the subject. Hernandez, commander of the cavalry in the district of Pinar del Rio, has been imprisoned for disloyalty. There is no confirmation of the engagements by the troops of Valmaseda with the insurgents. In the fights bayonets were used freely. The insurgents lost sixty troopers and four guns. The forces of Letona have arrived at [illegible], the forces of Pera, at Cienfuegos. The rebels have burned San Miguel plantations. The Diario says there was an engagement at Macuaty, two leagues from Sagua. The insurgents were defeated. Twenty were killed and many were wounded. Of the Spanish troops two were killed and several wounded.

The printers' strike has interfered seriously with the business of some of our large publishing houses. We observe an advertisement in a Boston paper, calling for compositors for a well known New York establishment. Boston prices are lower than New York, and work has accordingly gone thither during the last few years.

The English Language

Messrs. Charles Scribner & Co. have published in a neat volume eight lectures by Archbishop Trench, on English Past and Present. In these lectures, the English is considered as a composite language, and the causes which influenced its formation, and whence arose its continuous changes are fully set forth. It is a work of no inconsiderable value, inasmuch as its author is high authority on a subject on which it is a shame for English-speaking persons to be ignorant. After the many petty treatises on small errors of speech and the individual mistakes of certain authors, it is quite refreshing to get hold of a work dictated by the broad spirit and written in the wholesome style of the one before us. A few passages will be read with interest, and will convey a fair conception of the character of these lectures.

SAXON THE BASE OF THE LANGUAGE

"If you wish to have actual proof of the fact that the radical constitution of the language is Saxon, try to compose a sentence, let it be only of ten or a dozen words, and the subject entirely of your own choice, employing therein only words of a Latin derivation. You will find it impossible, or next to impossible, to do this. Whichever way you turn, some obstacle will meet you in the face. On the other side, whole pages might be written, not, perhaps, on higher or abstruser themes, but on familiar matters of every-day life, in which every word should be Saxon extraction; and these, pages from which, with the exercise of a little patience and ingenuity, all appearance of awkwardness should be excluded, so that none would guess, unless otherwise informed, that the writer had submitted himself to this restraint and limitation, and was drawing his words from one section only of the English language. . . . But because it is thus possible to write English, foregoing altogether the use of the Latin portion of the language, you must not, therefore, conclude this latter portion of the language to be of little value, or that we should be as rich without it as with it. We should be very far indeed from so being. I urge this, because we hear sometimes regrets expressed that we have not kept our language more free from the admixture of Latin, and suggestions made that we should even now endeavor to restrain our employment of this with in the narrowest possible limits."

HOW THE LANGUAGE AROSE.

"The battle of Hastings had been lost and won. Whether, under more prudent leadership, the Saxon battle-axes might not proved a match for the Norman spears, we cannot now determine. But the die was cast. The invader had, on that day, so planted his foot on English soil, that all after efforts were utterly impotent to dislodge him. But it took nearly three centuries before the two races—the victors and the vanquished—who now dwelt side by side in the same land, were thoroughly reconciled and blended into one people. During the first century which followed the conquest, the language of the Saxon population was, as they were themselves, utterly crushed and trodden under foot. A foreign dynasty, speaking a foreign tongue, and supported by an army of foreigners, was on the throne of England; Norman ecclesiastics filled all the high places of the Church, filled probably every place of honor and emolument; Norman castles studded the land. During the second century, a reaction may very distinctly be traced, at first most feeble, but little by little gathering strength, on the part of the conquered race to reassert themselves, and, as a part of their reassertion, to reassert the right of English to be the national language of England. In the third century after the conquest, it was at length happily evident that Normandy was forever lost, that for Norman and Englishman alike there was no other sphere but England; this reassertion of the old Saxondom of the land gaining strength every day, till, as a visible token that the vanquished were again the victors, in the year 1349, English and not French was the language taught in the schools of this land.

But the English, which thus emerged from this struggle of centuries in which it had refused to die, was very different from that which had entered into it. The whole of its elaborate inflections, its artificial grammar, showed tokens of thorough disorganization and decay, indeed, most of it had already disappeared.

"The leading men in the State having no interest in the vernacular, its cultivation fell immediately into neglect. The chief of the Saxon clergy deposed or removed, who should now keep up that supply of religious Saxon literature, of the copiousness of which we may judge, even in our day, by the considerable remains that have outlived hostility and neglect? Now that the Saxon landowners were dispossessed, who should patronize the Saxon bard, and welcome the man of song in the halls of mirth? The shock of the conquest gave a death blow to Saxon literature. The English language continued to be spoken by the masses, who could speak no other; and, here and there, a secluded student continued to write in it. But its honors and emoluments were gone, and a gloomy period of depression lay before the Saxon language as before the Saxon people. The inflection system could not live through this trying period. Just as we accumulate superfluities about us in prosperity, but in adversity we get rid of them as incumbrances, and we like to travel light when we have only our own legs to carry us—just so it happened to the English language. For now all these sounding terminations that made so handsome a figure in Saxon courts, as superfluous as bells on idle horses, were laid aside when the exercise of power was gone.

"But another force—that of external violence—had been at work also for the breaking up of the grammar of the language. A conquering race, under the necessity of communicating with a conquered in their own tongue, make very short work of the niceties of grammar in that tongue, brush all these away as so much trumpery, which they will not be at the pains to master. If they can make their commands intelligible, this is all about which they concern themselves. They go straight to this mark, but whether, in so doing, adjective agree with substantive, or verb with noun, or the proper case be employed, for this they care nothing. [illegible], there is a certain satisfaction, a secret sense of superiority in stripping the language of its ornament, breaking it up into new combinations, compelling it to move, forms, and making thus not merely the wills, but the very speech of the conquered to confess its subjection."

THE COMSTOCK MINES.—The product of the Comstock mines for the year 1868 was $8,499,762, a falling off from the official figures of the year before of some $5,120,000. The dividends paid amount to $2,415,500, of which one company, the Savage, paid $1,184,000, and the Yellow Jacket and Crown Point, each, $360,000, while the little Kentuck distributed the handsome sum of $450,000. The Imperial ($24,000) and Gold Hill Quartz ($7,500) complete the list of dividend paying mines. Even of these six mines the dividends do not represent clear profit, as the Yellow Jacket had an assessment of $150,000, the Imperial one of $100,000, the Gold Hill one of $10,000, and the Crown Point one of $90,000. Besides these there were fourteen other mines in which assessments were levied and various amounts of bullion, from zero to $880,076. Chollar Potosi produced, without profits enough to justify dividends. The total of assessments is $1,820,500 and the apparent net profits in the production of eight millions and a half of bullion is $690,000. The aggregate expense of the Comstock mines for the year appears to be a little over 90 per cent. of their aggregate product. This is a worse feature than the decrease of product, and indicates the necessity of some radical improvement—railroad or deep tunnel, or both.

The New York Post has the following: "There is a story of two members of the House, [illegible] Congress, [illegible] intelligent [illegible], who agreed that one should vote for and the other against any subsidy bill. [illegible] was the [illegible] they thought [illegible] at least [illegible]. We have heard of another member of the House who kept one of the old fashioned large copper cents in his desk, and when the vote on such a private scheme was taken answered yea or nay as the penny flipped up heads or tails. It is certain [illegible] vote as the most that are cast in this class of bills."

A New York editor makes use of the following apt figure: "The fight went on into midnight, at which the hands of the City Hall clock shut together like a pair of scissors at twelve, dividing the day which has been from the day which is to be, and letting the latter drop into the great waste-box of the past."

Mark Twain in Cleveland

HE LECTURES FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE ORPHAN ASYLUM.

At the close of a recent lecture Mark Twain said:

"Ladies and Gentlemen: I am well aware that it would be a most gigantic fraud for you to pay a dollar apiece to hear my lecture. But you pay your dollar to the Orphan Asylum, and have the lecture thrown in. So if it is not worth anything, it does not cost you anything. There is no expense connected with this lecture. Everything is done gratuitously, and you have the satisfaction of knowing that all you have paid goes for the benefit of the orphans. I understand that there are to be other entertainments given, week after next, for the same object, the asylum being several thousand dollars in debt, and I earnestly recommend you all to attend them, and not let your benevolence stop with this lecture. There will be eating to be done. Go there and eat, and eat, and keep on eating, and pay as you go. The proprietors of the skating rink have generously offered to donate to the asylum the proceeds of one evening, to the amount of $1,000 dollars, and when that evening comes, go and skate. I do not know whether you can skate or not, but go and try. If you break your necks, it will be no matter; it will be to help the orphans.

Don't be afraid of giving too much to the orphans, for however much you give you have the easiest end of the bargain. Some persons have to take care of these sixty orphans, and they have to wash them. Orphans have to be washed! And it's no small job either, for they have only one washtub, and it's slow business. They can't wash but one orphan at a time. They have to be washed in the most elaborate detail, and by the time they get through with the sixty the original has to be washed over again. Orphans won't stay washed! I've been an orphan myself for twenty-five years, and I know this to be true. There is suspicion of impurity and imposition about many ostensibly benevolent enterprises, but there is no tint of reproach upon this for the benefit of these little waifs upon the sea of life, and I hope your benevolence will not stop here. In conclusion I thank you for the patience and fortitude with which you have listened to me.

THE COMING GIRL.—She will vote, will be of some use in the world, will cook her own food, will earn her own living, and will not die an old maid. The coming girl will not wear the Grecian bend, dance the German, ignore all possibilities of knowing how to work, will not endeavor to break the hearts of unsophisticated young men, will spell correctly, understand English before she affects French, will preside with equal grace at the piano or washtub, will spin more yarn for the house than for the street, will not despise her plainly clad mother, her poor relations, or the hand of an honest worker; will wear a bonnet; speak good plain, unlisping English, will darn her own stockings; will know how to make doughnuts, and will not read the Ledger oftener than she does the Bible.

The coming girl will walk five miles a day, if need be to keep her cheeks in a glow; will mind her health, her physical development and her mother; will adopt a costume both sensible and conducive to health and comfort; will not confound hypocrisy with politeness; will not place lying to please above frankness; will have courage to cut an unwelcome acquaintance; will not think refinement is French duplicity; that the assumed hospitality where hate dwells in the heart, is better than condemnation; will not confound grace of government with silly affectation; will not regard the end of her being to have a beau.

The coming girl will not look to Paris, but to reason, for her fashion; will not aim to follow a foolish fashion because milliners and dressmakers decree it; will not torture her body, shrivel her soul with puerilities, or ruin it with wine and pleasure. In short, the coming girl will seek to glorify her Maker and to enjoy mentally His works. Duty will be her aim and life a living reality.—Church Union.

THE GOOD SENSE OF GEN. GRANT.—There is something really refreshing to all our perceptions in a display of good sense, regardless of whether it is made in the fashion of a garb, the word of an orator, the deed of a man or the conduct of a woman. The nation is hungry for good sense. Like a sick man longing for that indescribable something which he cannot name, the nation has reached out and coveted good sense. We all weary of diplomacy, folly, intrigue, falsehood and fraud; and just as this has [illegible] and repulsive, in comes the good sense of Ulysses S. Grant. He shows it and talks it. He wants things real and not veneered. He evidently feels as if there had been too much illicit tampering with all that is fair and honorable. There has been over doing of that in the Government, which to be well done, should be characterized by good sense. He is not inclined to defer to what is called official etiquette if the formality is designed to cover a defect which should be exposed and abolished. He will not be controlled in order to further selfish men's plans. And best of all, he is resisting political homage. This is Grant's good sense. It is what the people want. The nation needs its influence in all its varied works which are pursued to maintain its life.—Harrisburg (Pa.) State Guard.

THE FIRST ENGINE.—The first effective locomotive engine built in America was built in Philadelphia, from a draft by Rufus Tyler, in 1832. This gentleman was at that time considered the best mechanic in America. The wheels of the engine were made of wood, with broad rims and thick tires, the flange being bolted to the side. It was called Old Ironsides. She was first put in motion on the Germantown and Norristown Railroad. She ran one mile an hour, and was considered the wonder of the day. It was ascertained that the wheels were too light to draw the tender, and to overcome this difficulty the tender was placed in front of the engine. This kept the wheels on the track. The maker and his partner pushed the engine ahead until it made some speed, and then jumped on the engine. The boiler being too small for the engine steam was only generated fast enough to keep it in motion for a short time, so they were compelled to alternately push and ride during the whole trial trip. It was regarded as a success. The wheels were afterward replaced with iron wheels. This old engine is still in existence in Vermont.

Senator Sprague has purchased the celebrated Dungaren estate, Cumberland Island, Florida, which lies in view of Fernandina. This estate comprises about six thousand acres, and it is said that the mansion house is to be fitted up for a winter residence, and the entire tract reserved for gardens, drives, hunting grounds and pleasure parks. Senator Sprague has also purchased a large plantation, of three thousand acres, on the same island, which it is said he designs devoting to the culture of ramie, an article becoming in great demand, both in Europe and in this country, as a substitute, in a measure, for cotton and flax. These lands are said to be of good quality, with a valuable growth of live oak. The price paid is ten dollars an acre.

LOVE, MURDER AND SUICIDE.—These are the etails of a fearful and unprecedented tragedy hich occured near Sewellsville, Ohio, reently: One Thomas Carr fell in love with a aughter of his employer, Miss Louisa Fox, nd desired to marry her. The young lady eing but fourteen years old the suit was deied by her parents, and Carr at once determned upon murder. He procured a razor and tarted for the House of Mr. Fox, when he et Louisa on the road, accompanied by a ounger brother. Carr turned about and they alked together. During the conversation hich ensued, the girl told him that her grandmother, whose house she had just left had old her that her parents had determined that he should never keep his company again. The reply of Carr was that "he gu[illegible] both of them had a short time to live," adding the query, "Louisa, are you prepared?" To which she responded, "I am." Immediately after the reply he pushed her down and drew out the razor, which he hitherto kept concealed in his pocket, and proceeded to cut her throat. The girl threw up her hands, which were fearfully gashed in the struggle. It appears that she did not make an outcry or plead for her life, so rapidly was the deed consummated. Subsequent examination showed that the victim's head was nearly severed from her body. The murderer returned to Sewellsville and borrowed a gun. He then proceeded by a roundabout course to a coal bank near Mr. Fox's house, the home of the murdered girl where he passed the night, during which he ventured to the front window, watching the neighbors while they prepared the body of the girl for burial. The next day he shot himself with the gun, and thinking the wound not fatal, cut his [illegible] with a shoe knife, just after which he was discovered, and ar[illegible]. He will not recover from his wounds.

BAYONET CHARGES.—The French [illegible] are now earnestly debating the question whether opposing armies frequently cross bayonets. It is [illegible]ted that in all the wars of the first Empire there were only two actions in which troops actually met at the bayonets' point. One was in 1805, at Amstetten, when Oudinot's grenadiers attacked the grenadiers of the Russian rear guard, and the bayonet [illegible] lasted several minutes. The [illegible] was at Lutzen, in 1813, when the [illegible] regiment of the line, piqued that the Emperor seemed to doubt its prowess, fought the whole day with the bayonet, without [illegible] a ridge. It is argued that the phrase "bayonet encounter" in the [illegible] language of the soldier, means a [illegible] altogether moral," and that the shock of troops, which is ordinarily called an attack [illegible] at the point of the bayonet, should be more accurately named, a "bayonet [illegible]." As an illustration of the truth of this statement, the statistics of the U. S. Surgeon General, collected from the battles in the late rebellion, are cited. From the [illegible] it appears that during the first three years of the war, only one hundred and five sabre, and one hundred and three bayonet wounds were reported from the [illegible] [illegible] of these only two-thirds were received in action. Only twenty-[illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] of [illegible] "heroes" cavalry and infantry encounters in 1864 and 1865 [illegible].

GOING HOME [illegible] THE GIRLS.—The entrance to society may be said to take place after boyhood [illegible] away, yet a multitude take the initiative before their hearts are present able. It is a great trial to tender or tough age. For any [illegible] boy to go to a door, knowing [illegible] are a [illegible] girls within and [illegible] with absolute certainty that in two [illegible] all the [illegible] will be upon him, is a [illegible] test of courage. To go before the girls and make a [illegible] tour of the room without stepping on their toes, and the [illegible] is an art [illegible] of which few can boast. If a boy can get so far as to [illegible] off ten yards of tape and [illegible] it at one end he may [illegible] a pleasant chance to spend [illegible] let him not [illegible] over. There comes at last the [illegible] up. The dear girls don their hoods and put on their shawls [illegible] and [illegible] as if they did not wish any one to go home with them. Then away the pinch, and the boy has the most pluck [illegible] up [illegible] his heart in his throat, and [illegible] to the [illegible] his [illegible] out the [illegible] She [illegible] they [illegible] as aw[illegible] [illegible] Dis[illegible]

[illegible] Mrs. C[illegible] than [illegible] lated that [illegible] play [illegible] day in her [illegible] a couple of [illegible] with [illegible] and read out the [illegible] to [illegible] with his pencil The [illegible] Ella [illegible] burning with indignation and when alone in the c[illegible] which her [illegible] had marked, and proceeded to [illegible] by [illegible] out with her scissors.

JOHN CHINAMAN AT A BARGAIN.—The Chinaman's idea of credit differs somewhat from that of the American. Mr.—, a tradesman of considerable [illegible] and wealth [illegible] in San Francisco, applied through his agent to purchase of a Chinese a cargo of rice on time. The agent, of course, duly set forth the opulence, standing, etc., of his principal, to which Chinaman replied: "Yes, Brow-ee welly good man. Me t[illegible] rice Brown-ee, Brown-ee pay-ee me one-half cash-ee, other halp when me deliber lice-ee. You sabe? Good-by, John!" There's a little fog about the "good-by," but the [illegible] principle is eminently sound.

The authorities of the mint in France, have been experimenting upon zinc for replacing copper, either partially or entirely as an alloy for the silver coin of the country, and articles of silver ware generally. The advantages are said to be that the metal is more homogeneous, has at least as fine a white lustre, and possesses a clear ring and considerable elasticity. When toughened by continued or repeated rolling it is [illegible] by simple heating, and is less liable to be blackened by exposure to the sulphureted hydrogen of the atmosphere, while there is no greater costing for [illegible] with acid liquids. A mixture of 835 parts of silver, 93 of copper, and 72 of zinc is [illegible].

STOW FOUNDATION PAVEMENT

SAN FRANCISCO, January 18, 1869.

Hon. Frank McCoppin, Mayor of San Francisco—Dear Sir: You have now been connected with our City Government as Supervisor and Mayor for the past nine years, during which time you must have given a great deal of attention to Street Paving, and I now ask it as a special favor to me, that you give briefly, in writing, the result of your convictions relative to the several styles of street paving now in use in this city. By so doing you will much oblige

Your obedient servant,
H. F. WILLIAMS,
President Stow Foundation Pavement Co

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan 20th, 1869.

Henry F. Williams, Esq., President of the S. F. P. Co.—Dear Sir: Your communication of yesterday, requesting me to give in writing my opinion relative to the several kinds of street pavement now in use in this city, is before me, and in reply I would say, that at the time I became a municipal officer of this city, in 1860, and for many years thereafter cobble-stone was the only kind of pavement used by the city in its corporate, and by individuals in their individual capacity. About five years ago the Nicolson pavement was introduced here by Mr J. J. Robbins, assignee of the owner of the patent, and was received with much favor by our citizens. Very many portions of our streets are now paved with the Nicolson Pavement, so-called—still later—that is to say, about two years ago, the "Stow Foundation Pavement" was introduced here by the inventor, and many of our public streets have since been paved with that pavement.

A sufficient length of time has, I think, elapsed, to enable any person who has given the subject any attention, to form an intelligent opinion as to the merits of the respective wooden pavements—of course, I leave the cobble-stones out of view entirely—and I have come to the conclusion that, in many respects, such as adaptability to our wants and in durability, the Stow is the superior pavement. But, were the two pavements equal in every other respect, the facility with which the Stow can be taken up and [illegible] when it becomes necessary to displace it for the purpose of laying down gas and water pipes, should, in my judgment, entitle it to preference and public favor.

Very [illegible]ly, your obedient servant,
FRANK McCOPPIN,
Mayor of the City of San Francisco

Look at their [illegible] ted and disfigured faces and their broken [illegible] ties, disqualifying them for the happiness of [illegible] or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid [illegible] sands suffer until death closes the scene. Lo[illegible] gue, friends, attend to those who are [illegible] any of these horrible life-destroying maladies [illegible] they are cared for and cured before it be too late [illegible] them immediately to Doctor Gibbon, [illegible] made private diseases his special study for [illegible] is certain to cure the most inveterate cases [illegible] cury or any injurious drugs. It is important [illegible] who are afflicted, or to those who are inter[illegible] welfare of their friends, to be careful of the [illegible] tended doctors who infest all cities, publishing [illegible] in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians [illegible] Europe and other places. Be therefore careful [illegible] strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of [illegible] charlatans.

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions, the consequence of self-abuse [illegible] solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence, is [illegible] by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited [illegible] producing, with unerring certainty, the follow[illegible] of morbid symptoms, unless combatted by scientific medical measures, viz: Sallow countenance, dark spots [illegible] the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, [illegible] the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, [illegible] about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused [illegible] blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in [illegible] preaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintance, a disposition to shun society, loss of me[illegible], flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the [illegible] furred tongue, fetid breath, coughs, consumption, [illegible] sweats, monomania and frequent insanity. If relief [illegible] not obtained, should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and [illegible] entific mode of treating this disease, which never fails [illegible] a quick and radical cure. Dr. G. will give [illegible] Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by [illegible] of the San Francisco quacks.

MARRIED MEN,

Or those who contemplate marriage, who are [illegible] under any of these fearful maladies, should not forget [illegible] sacred responsibility resting upon them nor [illegible] obtain immediate relief.

DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give to [illegible] patient a written instrument, binding himself to [illegible] radical and permanent cure, or make no charge.

CURED AT HOME.

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT [illegible] by addressing a letter to Dr. Gibbon, stating [illegible] toms, length of time the disease has continued, and [illegible] medicine promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and [illegible] directions for use, for Ten Dollars, sent in a re[illegible] ter or through Wells, Fargo & Co.

Caution to the Unfortunate.

Beware of the San Francisco quacks and pretenders who, with bogus sworn-to certificates, dupe the [illegible] Some of the self-styled doctors, whose names are found in the daily and weekly newspapers of San Francisco and other places, are trash, men, and [illegible] lazy to work at their trades. Some are tinsmiths [illegible] makers, newspaper carriers, intelligence office keepers etc. Look over the San Francisco Directory, and you will not find their Medical Institutes in it, but you find their former occupations in it. Look at the [illegible] tory for 1862 and 1863. The only way to avoid [illegible] tion is to make enquiry—it will cost you [illegible] may save you many regrets; for, as advertising [illegible] cians, in eight cases out of ten, are bogus, there [illegible] safety in trusting any of them until you know who [illegible] what they are. Dr. Gibbon does not deceive [illegible] exhibiting bogus titles, certificates, pretended [illegible] letters, etc. Dr. Gibbon will satisfy persons who call at his office of his ability to treat diseases [illegible] proposes to cure.

ST. PATRICK'S CELEBRATION.—At the request of an Irish friend of this city, we copy a portion of an article from the S. F. Herald, concerning the preparations in that city for celebrating St. Patrick's Day, in the hope that it may inspire the Hibernians of this city with a spirit of [illegible]: "The preparations for the [illegible] of Ireland's National Festival are being pushed forward by [illegible] of the city with [illegible] vigor. The preparations for the procession are [illegible] going on and it promises to be one of the largest and most imposing of the kind that has ever been seen on this coast. [illegible] societies have been formed since last St. Patrick's [illegible] and the numbers of the old ones [illegible] Some new Irish [illegible] have also been [illegible] and when all are united in [illegible] present almost [illegible] of the day will be [illegible] by [illegible] the Union Hall, after the procession [illegible] to be the favorite [illegible] the day. The branch of the Fenian Brotherhood [illegible] Mr. John F[illegible] is State Centre, [illegible] by a grand civic and military ball in the hall of the California Theatre. This hall will be [illegible] by the Brotherhood with Irish and [illegible] flags. It will accommodate [illegible] couples, and the [illegible] of the Committee will not be fully [illegible] that number be present. The branch of the Brotherhood of which Col. M. C. Smith is State Centre, will close the [illegible] of the day in a similar way. For this purpose Union Hall has been engaged [illegible] and the Brotherhood are determined to leave [illegible] to make the entertainment worthy of the day. The Irish Regiment are also going to wind up the day in the same manner, and have already engaged Platt's Hall for the [illegible]. It is believed the Emmet Guard of [illegible] will visit the city, and will be the guests of the [illegible]. A grand ball will also be given by 'The Sons of the [illegible] Isle,' in McCue's Hall, on Third street. A ball [illegible] on a magnificent scale will take place at the Brooklyn Hotel on that night."

UP THE COLUMBIA—BUSINESS ITEMS.—We clip the subjoined items from the Walla Walla Statesman of the 26th ult: "We notice that small parties begin to start out for the mines—the most of them bound for the Kootenai country, where they expect to find claims on Perry Creek. Parties bound for the mines will find horses and everything else required to complete the miner's outfit in full supply at Walla Walla, and at very low prices. Horses may be quoted at figures ranging all the way from $15 to $80, and supplies of bacon, flour, sugar, &c., can be bought in this market at lower figures than the same [illegible] can be laid down for from below......We notice that the packers are already engaged in refitting their rigging and otherwise preparing for the spring trade. Those who have lately come in, report very little snow on the mountains, and thus all the indications point to an unusually early resumption of trade and travel......We have good authority for saying that quite a number of [illegible] greenbacks are in circulation in this locality. Mr. H. M. Johnson, a few days since, exhibited to us a counterfeit $10 on the Marine Bank of New York, which was admirably executed and well calculated to deceive; the only difference that we could detect was that the paper was somewhat coarser than in the [illegible] notes. Parties receiving greenbacks should carefully examine each and every note, and reject all that are doubtful......The physicians report the health of the people in both town and country as excellent. There is not a single case of contagious disease known to exist, and all fears on this score have disappeared. People from the country come into town as usual, and even those who were most frightened, have got over their scare."

THE "WILSON G. HUNT."—The Colonist notices the arrival at Victoria of the steamer Wilson G. Hunt and says of her: The Hunt has a tonnage of 436 59-100, contains eight state and two family rooms, dining saloon and ladies' boudoir. She was built at New York City in 1849, and came round the Horn in that year and ran for some time on the Sacramento river. In 1858 she came to Victoria and ran until the fall of 1860 on the route between Fraser river and Victoria. In 1861 she was sold to the Oregon Steam Navigation Company, and has since run in the Columbia river trade. In 1866 she was rebuilt at Portland and, together with the improvements recently placed upon her, is an almost entirely new boat. The officers of the Wilson G. Hunt are: Captain, William Waitt; Purser, Captain Myrick; Mate, J. Smith; Chief Engineer, Thomas Smith; Assistant Engineer, James [illegible]; Carpenter, Mr. Holland.

SALEM NEWS.—The Unionist says Mrs. Dr. McAfee has been released from custody, there being no direct evidence against her......The funeral services of Rev Father Leslie took place at the M E Church yesterday......School statistics furnished by Mr W T Ramsey, Superintendent for Marion county, show that in fifty-two districts which have reported, there are 2,070 legal voters, 2,033 males between the age of four and twenty years, and 2,065 females between the same ages. The number of school quarters taught during the year was 109. The amount of school money to which each scholar is entitled for the coming school year, is $1 53. Three districts which reported last year, have not done so this. The whole number of districts on the Superintendent's book is seventy-two.

WHITE PINE.—An exchange paper says: "It costs about $110 to go to White Pine, including meals. There are already nearly 5,000 people there. Water—melted snow—is worth two and three bits a bucket. In consequence of the snow and intense cold, jumping claims and town lots is the chief employment of the inhabitants."

STREET LAMPS.—Parties are engaged in planting a considerable number of street lamp posts in places which have hitherto sat in darkness, whereat everybody and his wife are greatly rejoiced.

COUNTY COURT—MARQUAM, JUDGE.—In the suit of W. G. Ballard vs. Stephen Coffin, action for debt, the argument was made yesterday, and the cause submitted to the judge.

[illegible] county:

"We, the Grand Jury, respectfully report that we have examined the public buildings in Multnomah county, and report upon their condition as follows:

"The Insane Asylum, under the management of Dr Hawthorne, we find to be a well regulated institution in all its departments. It is neat, commodious and comfortable. The inmates, numbering one hundred and seven, seem to be cared for in a humane and acceptable manner.

"The County Jail is well kept and clean, the necessary attention to warmth and ventilation is doubtless observed, the general good health of the prisoners is the best evidence we can offer in favor of our underground prison.

"The City Jail is a miserable old pile of bricks, that common humanity cries out against as unfit for the prison house of the most depraved.

"The County Poor House is a poor house in every sense of the word; it is poor in construction, arrangement, and furniture, and unfit, as we believe, to be occupied by the unfortunates who are forced to accept of public charity, and whose only fault is poverty or disease. The location of this Poor House, in its inaccessibility and uninviting surroundings, seems to be the poorest that could have been selected.

"J. C. AINSWORTH, Foreman."

U S DISTRICT COURT—DEADY, JUDGE.—Proceedings of Wednesday, 3d.

United States vs steamship Fidelater, libel for forfeiture, motion by libellant for continuance, to be heard to-morrow morning. Shattuck and Brockaway for claimants.

United States vs. Clark M. Sturtevant, indictment for opening a letter, affidavit and motion for continuance by defendant; order made setting cause for trial on the first Monday in May next. Logan & Shattuck for defendant.

United States vs. E. A. Foot & Co., action to recover penalties, affidavit and motion for continuance by defendants filed, and an order made to set cause for trial on the first Monday in May next. Logan & Shattuck for defendants.

Adjourned to Thursday at 10 A. M.

RAILROAD IRON.—The Portland Dray and Hack Co. are still engaged in hauling the rails received here by the bark Osmyn. They are piling them up on the depot grounds just below the Boneyard. We examined a considerable number of the rails yesterday and we find they are nearly all roughly rolled, the flanges being full of flaws. We have been informed—not, however, authoritatively—that these rails will be used in constructing a track from the depot, up Fourth street. For that purpose the rails will be as good as if the defects mentioned did not exist, as the speed of cars on a street track will never be great enough to strain the rails.

CIRCUIT COURT—UPTON, JUDGE.—Proceedings of Wednesday, 3d:

State of Oregon vs. T. H. Lappeus; verdict of jury, "Guilty of assault;" sentenced to pay a fine of $50, and costs of suit.

Venire issued for 12 additional jurors.

V. Trivett vs. L. C. Richardson; motion to set aside writ of arrest. Denied.

Stephens, et al, vs. Hannah, et al. Demurrer sustained. Plaintiff allowed until Friday week to answer.

State of Oregon vs. D. H. Fox. Jury empanneled and the remainder of the day occupied in hearing testimony.

WALKER'S SASH AND DOOR FACTORY.—We paid this institution a brief visit yesterday and took a look around among the new machinery, nearly all of which is now set up and ready for work. The various machines seem to be about as perfect as human ingenuity can make them and about as handy as could be desired. Mr. Walker has introduced a new style of saw which certainly beats "all natur'." It is an endless saw which runs over two large pulleys like a belt, one below and the other above the table. It works to a charm and goes thro' the wood with the most astonishing rapidity.

A THREE WHEELER.—Mr. Goulding of the Portland Iron Works, has just completed a three wheel velocipede which seems to work very satisfactorily. It is easily propelled and an expert rider can attain with it a high rate of speed. Mr. Goulding had it out Tuesday evening and other parties tried it yesterday, in both cases attracting considerable attention.

INSANE.—Mr. O. M. Banks brought down from Marion county, on Tuesday, an insane man named Hugh Stout, and placed him in the Asylum. Stout has been insane for a good many years but has occasional [illegible] rational periods, during one of which he was, some months ago, discharged from the Asylum as cured.

REAL ESTATE.—We call attention in this morning's issue to the advertisement of Messrs. Samuel & Upton, Real Estate Brokers. They offer for sale quite a large amount of desirable city, and also country, property. Parties desiring to invest would do well to give them a call.

CITY TAXES.—The tax roll of this city is now in the hands of Mr. C. P. Ferry, Treasurer. The taxes are due, and all remaining unpaid on the last day of this month will be returned as delinquent, and the person from whom due, will be liable for costs of collection.

A FEMALE TRAPEZIST.—The Chicago Tribune of February 9th thus describes the performance of a female gymnast at the Opera House, in the tournament scene in "The Field of the Cloth of Gold:"

"The most thrilling event of the evening is the performance of Mlle. Turnour upon a trapeze suspended from the proscenium arch, at the extreme height of the auditorium. Mlle. Turnour is a young lady of about fifteen, with a very interesting face, slightly built, and dressed in the customary acrobatic costume. Her feats upon the swinging bar, which are not only indicative of great skill, but of a strength no one would ever dream could belong to one so slight in figure, are almost too thrilling to be comfortable, at least for one with weak nerves, to gaze at. She suspends herself from the bar in all possible positions, and balancing herself upon the bar upon both feet, upon her toes, and upon one foot, swings it at a frightful rate without holding to the ropes at all. There were few in the audience who could gaze unmoved at this young girl performing these feats at such a dizzy height, and there were few who did not draw a breath of relief when she descended from her perilous trapeze. We have but rarely indeed seen such a combination of nerve, courage, skill and strength, even in the hardiest male performers, as was exhibited by the young girl, and if a perfect tempest of applause were any reward for the risks she ran, then she was amply rewarded. At the same time it is sad to think that some day she must inevitably fall if she persists in this hazardous calling."

Business has been slack in London. The trades depending on fashion have suffered pecuniarily. There is still no court. The Queen far away from the capital in her island home, the Prince of Wales at the Pyramids, or thereabouts, and the next son on a voyage, London is worse off than if she were a Republic. A President would at least spend something. The Queen's palaces are empty. People who look back remember how parties used to be given, three or four times a week, by the Queen and Prince Consort, how the best theatres were visited, and every thing new in art encouraged. All this is like a dream in these days, and the poor West End tradesman is bitter at heart.

A Copperhead paper viciously gets off the following: The brisk and assured air with which both Butler and Banks come up immediately after defeats that would annihilate men of ordinary sensibilities, is unquestionable proof of their genius. They have no more idea of being kept out of office or a conspicuous place in public attention by any repulse, however crushing, than the pious old aunty had of allowing one old goose that she had stolen to come between her and her "bressed Lord."

The friends of the fashionable deformity known as the Grecian Bend charge that tight pantaloons are equally absurd. This is a mistake. There is nothing ludicrous in masculine legs. The absurdity is in their tenuity. If a man is as manly and as healthy as he ought to be, his lower limbs are as attractive handiwork of nature as his face. If he is puny and sparrow-shanked, tight trousers are, for him, folly. Here is one of the evils of a uniform fashion, having no regard for individuals.—Chicago Republican.

KLAMATH LAKE COUNTRY.—From Geo. Flock, who has just arrived from Link River, we learn that feed is excellent for cattle around the lakes, and that they are fat and doing finely. He also says the Goose Lake country is the great center of attraction, and that a very large emigration is ready to leave Rogue River Valley and southern Oregon, for Goose Lake, as soon as the roads thereto are in a good travelling condition.—Yreka Journal.

"A SLIGHT COLD," COUGHS.—Few are aware of the importance of checking a cough or "slight cold" in its first stage, that which in the beginning would yield to a mild remedy, if neglected soon attacks the lungs. "Brown's Bronchial Troches" give sure and almost immediate relief. "The Troches" have proved their efficacy by a test of many years, and have received testimonials from eminent men who have used them.

STEAM POWER, NOS 625 AND 627 FRONT ST.
HAS CONSTANTLY ON HAND GROUND AND ROASTED COFFEE, GREEN COFFEE of the best qualities. CREAM OF TARTAR and SPICES of all sorts.
The undersigned, who has always enjoyed public confidence for the excellent quality of his Coffee, neglects nothing to justify the good name acquired by his productions, the sale of which daily increases. The acknowledged superiority of his merchandise, which commands here, and in the markets of the interior, a relatively higher price, excites the cupidity of some manufacturers, and every day he sees increasing the number of those who, by counterfeit or imitation of his mark, seek to deceive the public, palming upon them their inferior productions for the genuine G. VENARD CHARTRES COFFEE. This fraud can deceive nobody after a trial, but only adds to the favorable opinion of the consumers, the very flattering though unwilling testimony of the counterfeiters. Nevertheless, buyers should be forewarned, and placed on their guard against this practice.

RSDAY MORNING, MARCH 4, 1869.

Welcome, Grant and Colfax!

ral Grant to-day becomes the Chief trate of the Republic. No man ever be- esident of whom the people expected and in none has there been greater pop- or'ence. Last May he made the fol- g clear statement of the policy which l govern his administration. After stat- at the proceedings of the Convention tendered him the nomination were d with wisdom, moderation and patriot- and that he endorsed the resolutions, he "If elected to the office of President of nited States, it will be my endeavor to nister all the laws in good faith, with my, and with the view of giving peace, and protection everywhere. In times he present, it is impossible, or at least ently improper, to lay down a policy to hered to, right or wrong, through an ad- stration of four years. New political is- not foreseen, are constantly arising; the of the public on old ones are constantly ging, and a purely administrative officer d always be left free to execute will of people. I always have respected that and I always shall. Peace and univer- prosperity—its sequence—with economy ministration, will lighten the burden of ion, while it constantly reduces the na- l debt. Let us have peace.'' The Legis- e and Executive Departments of the Gov- ent are again in harmony, and we shall obtain the peace which has been so long poned by the perverseness of the most ful and hated man in America. Welcome, t and Colfax! Welcome, peace, honor loyalty! The country breathes free again to-day takes a new departure in its career eatness and glory.

The Exit of Infamy.

-day the country is done with Andrew son, the last, let us hope, of the Ameri- Bourbons. For three years a majority of American people have been counting the that must come and go before this last esentative of the pro-slavery period would the position to which he was elevated by me the most wicked and untoward in his- . The day of his departure has at last ed, and the shadow of Caligula, whom present political admirers used to call a r creature than Caligula's horse, starts Greenville to commence anew as a tailor, to become a candidate for Alderman. hing in his official life has been so accept- to his countrymen as his leaving it. The ancement he has had has not been due in sense to his merit, but has been owing lly to accident. He goes out of office e generally detested than any man ever held that high position, which saying a great deal when it is embered that Tyler, Fillmore, Pierce Buchanan preceded him. No doubt has hopes of a future political career, d on the idea that the Tennessee Ku Klux be his friends and supporters. A writer fully appreciates him remarks that "there ardly a cardinal vice in a public man to ch he is not the abject slave, or a cardinal e he has practiced. Obstinate as a pig e wrong course, he has been among the lest supporters of the right when he hap- ed to see it, which was seldom; and there ot a profession of his short and better lic career, that he did not betray and per- te with the bitterness of malice which the narrowest minds can muster. When e fairly cut loose from the friends and ciples of his better days there was no th of meanness and dishonor to which he itated to descend in the interest of wrong injustice. His malice has been manifest very department of the Government. He filled the Revenue Department with pil- rs and thieves, for no other discernible son than to embarrass Congress and bring party that elected him into disrepute on score of extravagance. He has lived to his boasted plan of reconstruction on a is of honor to traitors and slavery to loyal , blown away out of sight and hearing, retires from office with the full knowledge the people sustain Congress on every t which he opposed and contemned it; le he has not even the poor satisfaction ch the commendation and respect of the ls might bring. They despise him, and nly tell him so by their cordial acquies- e in the rights claimed by Congress. He quarreled with no man who has not been cially honored by the people. He has shed favors on no man who is to-day be- d and trusted by the country. He has pelled Congress to tie the hands of the cutive, only because a man as wholly unfit himself filled the position, and he is now pelled to witness the ineffable contempt that body in repealing laws in favor of ther which were made but to restrain him his friends have suffered in reputation his friendship; all his enemies have ited from his malice. Even those who d him from conviction on impeachment e in the odium which attaches to his e, and however pure their motives may e been, suspicion dooms them; the people no longer trust them. His last annual sage to Congress was a deliberate insult he nation, with all the signs of having purposely written to bring it into dis- or at home or abroad, and it was justly onded to by the utter contempt of every est reader. The man is simply an ignor- obstinate tyrant, to whom the right course n incomprehensible mystery, who is far, behind the age in liberal thought, and will now sink out of sight forever." The ntry has reason to rejoice that the rebel les who have filled the Executive man- and dictated the Executive's policy for last three years will now be dispersed, corrupt officials and thieving "rings" can onger bask in the smiles of Executive onage that rebel obstinacy and violence no longer meet with Executive encour- ment and favor, and last, but by no means , that the vocation of female pardon kers is at an end.

n Eastern paper says: The largest immi- ion to the United States was probably in , when the port of New York alone re- ed nearly a quarter of a million. Last the number fell below that of 1866, as as of 1867, but is still greater than at any d before 1866. The Germans, for the three years, have made up nearly one- of those landing at New York, and are than double the number of the Irish fact, though often stated, has not yet essed itself fully upon the minds of our le. The Irish element in our population sing its relative rank, while the German ent is gaining fast, and will continue to for years to come. The French send us ely more than one in a hundred of our igrants; they are not a colonizing or em- ing people.

A Parallel Case.

The Herald has concluded to go back and fight the political battle on the basis of the long since forgotten Crittenden Compromise. This shows a marvellous aptitude for the practicabilities of politics. That paper says that the Republicans caused the war because they wouldn't pass the Crittenden constitutional amendment. Now if that amendment was so vitally necessary to the preservation of the Union, why hadn't the Democracy in power for years, adopted it long before? Why did they wait till power was just about to depart from them, and then set up a threat that unless the Republicans would consent to an amendment that would make slavery perpetual they would destroy the Union? It is true the Republicans were not disposed to adopt the Crittenden amendment. It was honorable in them to refuse to accede to a proposition so revolting and accompanied by bluster and threats. Let us suppose a parallel case. The Republican party desires to establish impartial suffrage. Suppose that party had been defeated in the late Presidential election and was just now going out of power. Suppose that under these circumstances it should say to the Democrats: "Pass this constitutional amendment of ours on the suffrage question, or we'll secede and destroy the Union!" Would the Democrats do it? Not much. They would be poltroons if they did. In like manner the Republicans would have been poltroons to accept any constitutional amendment, least of all an amendment to eternize slavery, when the Democrats were threatening to destroy the nation unless it were done. The Republican doctrine was that the Constitution needed to be obeyed rather than amended. It was good doctrine, and always will be good doctrine. It is always more important that that instrument should be obeyed than amended. And any party which declares that they will destroy the Government unless the Constitution is amended to their liking will come to grief and deservedly find their doom. Will the Herald consider the case we have supposed and tell us whether its party would pass the suffrage amendment on the conditions we have mentioned? If not, let it cease to prate about the Crittenden amendment.

Small Notes.

The Pennsylvania Legislature has instructed the Senators and requested the Representatives in Congress from that State to oppose the further passage of any law granting public lands to any railroad company on any pretext whatever.

From the Commercial we learn that "an insane individual named Stout was brought down from Salem yesterday and taken over to the Asylum." Chapman will be down next and then the hope of getting a quorum will be completely blasted.

The following new patents have been granted: Improvement in horse power, Charles F. Gay, Albany, Oregon; improvements in gang plows, Z. T. Sweet, Eugene City, Oregon, improvement in shingle machines, Isaac I. Lancaster, Vancouver, Washington Territory.

The National Intelligencer of the 1st February devotes seven full columns, in different articles, to encomiums upon the character of Andrew Johnson and the vindication of his official action. It doesn't seem to be aware that the more ink which is expended upon the man the blacker he becomes.

A Tennessee correspondent of the Louisville Journal says that the Kuklux Klan has "degenerated into a gang of desperadoes." It is not so much a decline as it seems at first sight. The Klan was never anything better than a gang of desperadoes, in its best estate; and in spite of its efforts it cannot well become anything worse.

Governor English of Connecticut, who is nominated by the Democratic party for reelection, voted in Congress for the amendment abolishing slavery. For this he was temporarily shelved by his party, but he is now looked to as the only man in all the State who can drag that party out of the gulf of hopeless defeat.

The poor rag at Salem which tries to keep up its dignity and atone for its inanity by calling itself the "official paper of the State," continues in tribulation. It is mortally afraid that the Ku Klux stragglers now assembling at Salem will do it some injury. We don't believe that one of them would step an inch out of his way to crush so poor a worm. As to legislation, they can't do anything that will be legal unless they get a quorum, and they can't get a quorum if they told the truth when they adjourned last fall, for they said then there was no quorum in existence. If they have a quorum now, what excuse can they offer for adjourning last fall without passing the appropriation bill? And without a quorum how can they make a quorum? The poor rag at Salem cries out, "What shal we do?" You can do what you please, nobody else is frightened. This attempt of the Ku Klux is an illegal farce. Had the Governor called an extra session they would have been able to carry out their programme in full, gerrymander the State and pass all their partisan legislation; but as it is, their hopes will lack several degrees of fulfillment.

When Charlevoix first discovered the skunk, in Canada, he gave it the name of l'Enfant du Diable. Its secretion is the most powerful of all known odors; and has been perceived on the ground after it has been washed by the rains and snows of a whole winter. The seas in which it is secreted do not contain more than a quarter of an ounce of the fluid. In a lecture on odors given by Mr. Lyman, in Montreal, he said that it had been used as a remedy for the asthma. He told the story of a venerable clergyman who, suffered from paroxysms of this disease, and always carried it with him, in a vial tightly corked. Having had an attack in the pulpit, and leaving the bottle uncorked while he hastily resumed the service, he soon found to his amazement that himself and sexton were the only occupants of the church—the whole congregation having fled, overcome by the intolerable odor, and fearing the approach of this timid creature, which is the most dreaded of all American animals.

A romantic breach of promise case is now on trial at Hudson City, N. J., in which Mrs. Mary A. Harrison, a widow of 40, sues George Vreeland, a wealthy old courtier of 80, for $40,000 damages to her blasted affections. Mrs Harrison states, among other interesting facts, that the acquaintance began in 1862 when she asked Mr Vreeland for a loan of $50, that they were engaged in the spring of 1863, and have fixed on a number of times since for the marriage, which has never taken place. Among the presents which the woman received from her ancient lover were $50 to get a new set of teeth and $250 to begin a libel suit against the Sunday Mercury.

Three-fourths of the post offices in the land should be kept by women. They are strong enough, shrewd enough and business-wise enough for the work. They might be more tempted than men to peep into missives, but not half as apt to pilfer money letters. How many communities will silence the present masculine wrangles for the post office and unite in recommending some efficient, self-dependent woman for the place?—Chicago Advance.

DATES TO MARCH 2.

Farewell Address of Speaker Colfax.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—Mr. Colfax has resigned the Speakership. He said: "The parting word among friends about to separate is always a regretful one; but the farewell which takes me from this hall in which so many years have been spent, excites emotions which it would be useless to attempt to conceal. The fourteen years during which we have been associated as representatives of the people, have been full of eventful legislation. Exciting issues, grave questions and decisions vitally affecting the entire Republic—all this with the accompanying scenes which so often produced in the arena of debate the warmth of feeling of our antagonistic constituents, has passed into the domain of history. I but refer to them to express the joy which is apparently shared by the mass of our countrymen, that the storm cloud of war which so long darkened our national welfare has passed away, leaving our imperilled Union saved, and that by the decrees of the people, liberty was proclaimed throughout the land to all the inhabitants thereof.

But I cannot leave you without one word of rejoicing over the present position of our Republic among the nations of the earth. With our military power almost unlimited, resources rapidly augmenting as well as population, and the welcome at our gates to the oppressed of other lands, our vast agricultural, manufacturing and mineral capacities, our frontage on two oceans, our almost completed Pacific Railroad, uniting those opposite shores and becoming the highway of the nations, the United States commands that respect among the powers of the world which insures the maintenance of all its national rights and the security of all its citizens from injustice and oppression abroad. Nor is this all. The triumphal progress of free institutions here has had its potential influence beyond the sea. The right of the people to govern, based on the principle that all governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed, is everywhere advancing, not with a slow measured tread, but with a rapidity that within a few years has been so signally illustrated in Britain, Spain, Italy, Prussia, Hungary and other lands. May we not hope that by the moral but powerful force of our example, the fetters may everywhere be broken and some of us live to see the happy era when slavery and tyranny shall no more be known in the world forever to the end of the earth.

I cannot claim in the share I have had in the deliberations and legislation of the House as a member and officer, to have always done that which is wisest and best in word and act, for none is infallible; but that I have striven to perform faithfully every duty, and have been devoted to the principles that I have deemed correct, that the honor and glory of our country have always been paramount and above party ties, I conscientiously assert; that I have sought to mitigate rather than intensify the associations which the collisions of opposing parties so often evoke, must be left to my fellow members to verify.

In the responsible duties of the past six years, I have endeavored to administer your laws, both in the letter and spirit, with impartiality and uninfluenced by political associates or antagonists. I may be pardoned the expression of gratification that while no decision has been reversed, there has be no appeal ever decided by a strictly party vote. If in the quickness with which the presiding officer is compelled to rule hour after hour on parliamentary points in the performance of his duty to protect all members in their rights and advance the progress of public business and preserve order, any word has fallen from my lips that unjustly wounded any one, I withdraw it. I leave this hall with no feeling of unkindness towards any member with whom I have been associated in all the cares of the past, hoping earnestly, I think, to practice that lesson of life which commands us to write of our enemies on the sand, but to engrave friends high on granite.

But the last word cannot be longer delayed. I bid farewell to a faithful, confiding constituency, whose affectionate regard has sustained and encompassed me through all the years of my public life. Farewell to this hall, which in its excitement and activity so often seems to represent the throbbings and intense feelings of the national heart. And, finally, fellow members and friends, with sincere gratitude for the generous support which you have always given me in my difficult and other complex duties of this chair, with the warmest wishes for your health, happiness and prosperity, one and all, I bid you farewell. [Great applause.]

LONDON, March 2.—In the House of Commons yesterday, Gladstone, on leave, introduced a bill for the disestablishment of the Irish church. He made a long and able speech, commencing with the gravity and importance of the task before him. He adhered to his previous action, and declared that the House and the country are now unanimously in favor of the measure. The charges that the bill is antagonistic to religion or the interests of Protestantism, or an invasion of the rights of property, are untrue. He maintained that the Irish church prevented any real British union. The only means to effect this was on the basis of religious liberty and civil equality, which the bill would secure. The act takes effect in January next. A commission would be appointed for ten years to guard the property and prevent the creation of interest. All new ecclesiastical appointments would not be freeholders, and money would be employed for permanent purposes. These provisions replace the suspensory proposition of last year. The result would be the abolition of ecclesiastical courts and the jurisdiction and rights of bishops to the peerage. All ecclesiastical corporations would be dissolved. Gladstone eloquently advocated these means to tranquilize Ireland.

Disraeli replied. He regarded the policy proposed as politically wrong. It was an act of confiscation at best. As the Government had the right to bring the matter before the House for full discussion he would not oppose the motion then submitted. In the Irish disestablishment, provision is made for the clergy, who are to receive annuities, and the private endowments are to remain intact. The church is to be transferred to a council for religious purposes; grants are proposed for the support of St. Patrick's and seven other cathedrals and structures, to be regarded as national property, and are required to be transferred to a board of works for the benefit of a fund. The Presbyterian clergy are to receive annuities. The Catholic College at Maynooth, and the Presbyterian College are to be granted capitalized sums. Further legislation will be had in regard to Trinity College. The church lands are to be sold, the tenants having the first option of purchase. The capitalized value of the church property is estimated at £16,500,000, of which £800,000 are to be appropriated in compensations and the remainder to be employed for the advantage of the Irish, and not for the purposes of any church or class, nor for teaching religion, but for the relief of cases of unavoidable calamity, or suffering. Still this does not cancel the obligation upon the property for the relief of the poor. Grants are also to be made for the care of lunatics, training of nurses, and the support of the county infirmarys. The bill was read a first time and the 15th of March appointed for its second reading.

BOMBAY, March 2.—News is received from Central Asia that the son of the dethroned Emir of Cabul has gained possession of two cities of Turkistan, near the Cabul border. Rhoman Kahan has gone to join him. It is also reported that the garrison of Keohut, in Cabul, was surprised by natives. The British loss was 300 killed, wounded and missing.

LONDON, March 2.—Official Indian advices reduce the Keohut massacre to one British soldier killed, and two prisoners.

It is incorrect that Gough is dead.

The Idaho Branch Railroad.

[From the Sac Union, Feb. 22.]

The resolutions of a recent meeting held at Elko, to bring about co-operation with the people of Idaho for a branch railway connection with the Central Pacific at that point, will be found in another place. The Elko merchants are in earnest, because such a connection would certainly make that place the most commanding trading town on the whole line from San Francisco to Omaha. It has already the White Pine trade, which is immense, and if this connection could be effected it would be the point of departure for the trade of Silver City, Boise, and by far the richer and better part of Idaho. We hope they may succeed in their endeavors, but we doubt that the people of Idaho will readily co-operate in the movement. There is really no good reason why they should. The Idaho people would rather trade with California than with Illinois and Iowa, if they could have the assurance of doing so on equal terms, but they have not that assurance, and, like all other people, we may expect them to follow the dictates of self interest. The fact is, this Elko and Idaho projected railroad is at least but a branch of the Central Pacific Company's work, and that company have done all they could to turn the trade of the interior away from their line, and away from San Francisco. It is about 400 miles from here to Elko. The charge on a ton of freight for that distance is $60 in gold. It is about 1,100 miles from Omaha to Monument Point, the probable western terminus of the Union Pacific railway. The charge for a ton of freight on that 1,100 miles is $82 50 in greenbacks, or $62 87¼ in gold. That is, the Union Pacific carries a ton of merchandise 1,100 miles for $7 12½ in gold less than the Central carries the same 460 miles! An Idaho branch of the Union Pacific, extending from Monument Point (the northern end of Salt Lake) to Boise City, would be perhaps fifty miles longer than the branch from Elko; but it would still furnish the merchants of Boise cheaper than the Central Pacific branch, and we can't expect the Idaho merchants and consumers to be so partial to California as to agree to bind themselves to us when our trade is in such greedy and illiberal hands as the railway company. They will trade where they can buy cheapest, and acting on this universal law of trade they will co-operate with the Union Pacific Company for an extension of a branch of their road from Monument Point. It is true they have recently been promised a reduction on the Central road, but the per cent. is not specified; and from the pertinacity with which that company has all along resisted any reduction whatever, and from the arguments they have made to show that they are only charging reasonable rates, considering the cost of operating their road, and from the repeated apologies of their newspaper friends in this State, with the favors shown them by the Legislatures of these States, the people of Idaho have no good cause to anticipate much reduction after July 1st—certainly none to believe as strongly in the public spirit of this company or of this part of the country as they have in the Union Pacific and the force of public spirit in Chicago acting upon the company. The mischief is already done. The defeat of the Grey resolutions in the Senate of Nevada shows that the railway company holds that State as well as this in its vise, and that they have no intention of running their road for any other purpose than personal aggrandizement. It now seems altogether probable that Huntington's move before the Railway Committee at Washington, to secure the right to build the Central from Monument Point to Ogden, and so shut off the Union Pacific eighty miles further from Boise City, is made with the view of placing Idaho in a position that will compel her to submit to the oppressions of the California company.

The Koh-i-noor.

This has hitherto been a fatal jewel. May its recent recutting have broken the spell! Its history is well authenticated at every step. This stone of fate seems never to have been lost sight of from the days when Ala ud-deen took it from the Rajahs of Malwa, five centuries and a half ago, to the day when it became a crown jewel of England. Tradition carries back its existence in the memory of India to the year 57 B. C.; and a still wilder legend would fain recognize in it a diamond first discovered near Masulipitam, in the bed of the Godavery, 5,000 years ago. The Koh-i-noor is reported by Baber, the founder of the Mogul empire, to have come into the Delhi treasury from the conquest of Malwa, five centuries and a half ago. The Hindoos trace the curses and the ultimate ruin inevitably brought upon its successive possessors by the "genius" of this fatal jewel ever since it was first wrested from the line of Vikramaditya. If we glance over its history since 1304, its malevolent influence far excels that of the necklace for which Eriphyle betrayed her husband, or the Equus Seianus of Greek and Roman tradition. First falls the vigorous Patan, then the mighty Mogul Empire, and with vastly accelerated ruin, the power of Nadir, of the Dooranee dynasty, and of the Sikh. Runjeet Singh, when it was in his possession, was so convinced of the truth of this belief, that being satisfied with the enjoyment of it during his own lifetime, he sought to break through the ordinance of fate and the consequent destruction of his family by bequeathing the stone to the shrine of Juggernaut, for the good of his soul and the preservation of his dynasty. His successors would not give up the baleful treasure, and the last Maharajah is now a private gentleman. In 1850, in the name of the East India Company, (since, in its turn, defunct), Lord Dalhousie presented this jewel to Queen Victoria. Perhaps we should have been better without it; such, at least, appears to be Mr. King's opinion. The Brahmins will hardly relinquish their faith in the malignant powers possessed by this stone, when they think of the speedily following Russian war, which annihilated the prestige of the British army, and the Sepoy mutiny three years later, which caused England's existence to hang for months on the forbearance of one man.

The public saw the Koh-i-noor lustreless at the Exhibition of 1854, then weighing 166 carats. Its recutting performed in 1862, though executed with the utmost skill and perfection, has deprived the stone of all its historical and mineralogical interest. As a specimen of a gigantic diamond, whose native weight and form had been interfered with as little as possible, (for with Hindoo lapidaries the great object is the preservation of weight) it stood without a rival, save the Orloff, in Europe. As it is, the place of the most ancient gem in the history of the world—older even than the Tables of the Law and the Breastplate of Aaron, supposing them still to exist—we get, according to Mr. King, a bad shaped, because too shallow, modern brilliant, a mere lady's bauble, of second rate water, for it has a grayish tinge, and, besides, inferior in weight to several, being now reduced to 102¼ carats. The operation of recutting was performed in London, under the care of the Messrs. Garrards, the Queen's jewellers, who erected for that purpose a small four horse engine on their premises. It was conducted by Voorsanger and another skillful workman sent over by M. Coster, from Amsterdam. In consequence of the advantage gained by using steam power, the actual cutting occupied no more than 38 working days—a striking contrast to the two years necessary for cutting the Pitt diamond by the old hand process. In some parts of the work, as when it was necessary to grind out a deep flaw, the wheel made 3,000 revolutions per minute.—English paper.

ROMANTIC.—The Kansas City Times tells about a young old bachelor who lived two miles south of that city, and who, being on a visit to a friend, and complaining of his lonely lot, was introduced to a young lady, a stranger to him. Says the Times: "The two were left alone for about one half hour to talk over the subject of marriage on business principles. They appeared pleased with each other. The gentleman went out, hired a carriage, took the young lady to the country, showed her his home, came back, went for a minister and the two were duly married."

Dr. George R. Peters, of Vicksburg, Miss., who killed Van Dorn, has again married his former wife from whom he was divorced in consequence of her alleged intimacy with Van Dorn. Mrs. Peters now renounces her intention of becoming an actress.

St. Petersburg has a Sorosis which demands for their sex a participation in the various branches of higher historical, philological and scientific education, including the practical art of medicine.

General George H. Thomas denies ever having authorized the statement that he would not believe General John Pope or General Roberts on their oaths, as General Franklin, a year ago, said he did.

OPPOSITION LINE OF STEAMERS.—A private letter from San Francisco says that a strong and well regulated Steamship company was formed in that city for the purpose of running a line of steamers regularly between San Francisco and Portland. The steamers are known to be suitable for the Oregon trade and are noted for good speed and splendid passenger accommodation. The people of Oregon will have an opportunity of showing whether they are willing to patronize good and staunch steamers at a reasonable price for freight and passage, as it will depend on the patronage those steamers will receive whether they will remain in our waters or not.

[illegible] Murderous Suicide — These are the [illegible] of a [illegible] and unprecedented tragedy [illegible] occurred near Newellsville, Ohio recently. One Thomas Carr fell in love with a [illegible] of his employer, Miss Louisa Fox, [illegible] desired to marry her. The young lady [being] but fourteen years old, the suit was declined by her parents, and Carr at once determined upon murder. He procured a razor and started for the House of Mr Fox, when he met Louisa in the road, accompanied by a younger brother. Carr turned about and they walked together. During the conversation which ensued, the girl told him that her grandmother, whose house she had just left, had told her that her parents had determined that she should never keep his company again. The reply of Carr was that "he guessed both of them had a short time to live," adding the query, "Louisa, are you prepared?" [To] which she responded "I am." Immediately after the reply he pushed her down and drew out the razor which he hitherto kept concealed in his pocket, and proceeded to cut her throat. The girl threw up her hands, which were fearfully gashed in the struggle. It appears that she did not make an outcry or plead for her life, so rapidly was the deed consummated. Subsequent examination showed that the victim's head was nearly severed from her body. The murderer returned to Newellsville and borrowed a gun. He then proceeded by a roundabout course to a coal bank near Mr Fox's house, the home of the murdered girl, where he passed the night, during which he ventured to the front window, watching the neighbors while they prepared the body of the girl for burial. The next day he shot himself with the gun, and thinking the wound not fatal, cut his throat with a [illegible] knife, just after which he was discovered and arrested. He will not recover from his wounds.

Bayonet Charges — The French journals are now earnestly debating the question whether opposing armies frequently cross bayonets. It is asserted that in all the wars of the first Empire there were only two actions in which troops actually met at the bayonets point. One was in 1805 at Amstetten, when Oudinot's grenadiers attacked the grenadiers of the Russian rear guard, and the bayonet engagement lasted several minutes. The second instance was at Lutzen, in 1813, when the Twenty-fifth regiment of the line, piqued that the Emperor seemed to doubt its prowess, fought the whole day with the bayonet without burning a cartridge.

It is argued that the phrase "bayonet encounter," in the ordinary language of the soldier means "a pressure altogether moral," and that the shock of troops, which is ordinarily called an attack or charge at the point of the bayonet, should be more accurately named, a "bayonet demonstration." As an illustration of the truth of this statement, the statistics of the U. S. Surgeon General, collected from the battles in the late rebellion are cited. From the records it appears that during the first three years of the war, only one hundred and five sabre, and one hundred and three bayonet wounds were reported from the whole field operations, and of these only two-thirds were received in action. Only twenty five sabre wounds were reported as the result of Sheridan's many "fierce" cavalry and infantry encounters in 1864 and 1865.

Going Home with the Girls. The entrance to society may be said to take place after boyhood has passed away, yet a multitude take the initiative before their hearts are presentable. It is a great trial to tender or tough age. For any overgrown boy to go to a door, knowing there are a dozen girls within, and knock or ring, with absolute certainty that in two minutes all their eyes will be upon him, is a severe test of courage. To go before these girls and make a satisfactory tour of the room without stepping on their toes, and then sit down and dispose of one's pockets is an achievement of which few can boast. If a boy can get so far as to measure off ten yards of tape and manage to cut it short at one end he may stand a pleasant chance to spend a pleasant evening; but let him not flatter himself the trials of evening are over. There comes at last the breaking up. The dear girls don their hoods and put on their

San Francisco, January 19, 1869.

Hon Frank McCoppin, Mayor of San Francisco — Dear Sir: [illegible] with [the] City Government as Supervisor and Mayor [during] the past [illegible] years, during which [illegible] given a great deal of attention to Street [illegible] [illegible] in writing the result of your [illegible] several [illegible] street paving now in use [illegible] with much of [illegible]

Your obedient servant,

H. F. WILLIAMS,

President Stow Foundation [Pavement Company]

San Francisco, Jan. [illegible] 1869.

Henry F. Williams, Esq., President S. F. P. Co. — Dear Sir: [illegible] questioning me to give in writing my [illegible] in relation to the several kinds of street pavement [illegible] [illegible] I became a municipal officer [illegible] many years the [illegible] pavement used by the city [illegible] [illegible] the Nicolson pavement was introduced here by Mr. J. J. Robbins, assignee of the [illegible] of the patent, and was received with much favor [illegible] many portions of our streets are now paved with [the] Nicolson Pavement, so called [illegible] about two years ago, the Stow Foundation Pavement was introduced here by the [illegible] of [illegible] public streets have already been paved with that pavement.

A sufficient length of time has [illegible] I think elapsed, to enable any person who has given [illegible] of an intelligent [illegible] the merits of [illegible] [illegible] the Nicolson pavement [illegible] [illegible] of [illegible] entirely — and I have come to the conclusion that [illegible] many respects [illegible] [illegible] pavement. But were the two pavements equal in every other respect, the facility with which [the] Stow can be taken up and relaid whenever it becomes necessary to do so for the purpose of laying [illegible] gas and water pipes, [would] to my judgment entitle it to preference on public favor.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

FRANK McCOPPIN,

Mayor of the City of San Francisco.

We the undersigned, have carefully read the above letter from his Honor Frank McCoppin to H. F. Williams, Esq., upon the [illegible] of street [paving], and we fully indorse every word it contains.

Nineteenth Volume!

Only $3.00 a Year.

By common consent the OREGONIAN ranks first among the papers published in the Northwest. It is the oldest paper in the State and its circulation and influence [are] greater than that of any other two papers combined. Always in the front in gathering the latest intelligence and in giving in each issue a larger amount and greater variety of reading matter it has no competitor. It is thoroughly identified with this city and State and neighboring Territories, where the number of its readers and its influence are constantly increasing.

An unflinching advocate of sound Union principles, it at the same time pays special attention not only to MATTERS OF GENERAL INTEREST but to everything of moment to the great
